Alva, Home of Northwestern

A

LVA, County Seat of Woods County, is situated on the Salt Fork of the Arkansas River in the northwestern part of the State, about one hundred sixty miles from Oklahoma City. It is fortunately located and easy of access, being served by two railroads, the southern transcontinental line of the Santa Fe from Chicago to San Francisco, and the Rock Island lines making direct communication with Oklahoma City and with points in Kansas. It is an important point on the Albert Pike Highway which extends from Hot Springs, Arkansas, to Colorado Springs, Colorado, and is the western terminal of Young's Trail which leads to Oklahoma City. Alva is the center of a prosperous farming community in which wheat, feed crops, broom corn, alfalfa, fruits and vegetables are raised in abundance. Woods County farmers are proud of their fine horses, cattle, hogs and poultry. The climate of Woods County is healthful with mild, pleasant winters and delightful summers, with just enough rainfall to keep crops in good condition and to keep the public and private parks green and beautiful. The altitude is a little more than thirteen hundred feet. It is in the heart of this region that Northwestern Normal College is located.

Years ago these plains were covered with tall, succulent grasses and the herds of buffalo roamed over them at will. Indians built their wigwams along the Nescatunga and lived peaceably among themselves or waged war against other peoples. Then came the pioneers who blazed the trail for civilization. They traded and hunted with the natives, and some who still survive say that they killed buffalo on the very spot where the College now stands. Herds of buffalo gave way to herds of cattle, and Indian wigwams gave way to the dug-outs of the pioneers. In 1893 the country was opened to settlement and cities grew up over night. Woods county was laid out and Alva was designated as its county seat. On the second day of its history Alva was a busy town of several hundred people. Since then it has grown steadily until now it numbers almost five thousand inhabitants. Its men and women were hardy and energetic, and today these qualities show as their most prominent characteristics. The merchants are progressive and are organized together for the benefit of the entire community. They have instituted a plan of advertising and business methods that are strictly honest and fair, and make their own businesses to prosper by satisfying their customers. "Bargain Day," which comes once a month, attracts hundreds of people from distances of fifty and seventy-five miles. Lately Alva has entered into the "Better Cities" contest, and is making rapid strides toward the goal of becoming the best city in the State in which to rear a family. Alva is a center of education and religious worship. There are nine churches in the city, so that any who comes to Alva will find the religious home of his own choice. Alva is famous for her schools. There are two ward schools and a parish school, and a fully accredited high school with an enrollment well over four hundred. In 1897 the Northwestern State Normal School was established at Alva, and in 1920 it was changed to the Northwestern Normal College with power to grant degrees. It has kept pace in growth with the city, growing from one building and six graduates in 1900 to five buildings and approximately one hundred graduates in 1920.

FACULTY

W

E KNOW that we have a most wonderful faculty, but lest we forget, let us think of them individually, once again.

First, there is the "boss," alias J. P. Battenberg, who is "hail fellow well met" with everyone. He is a most excellent father to us all.

Next in line comes W. H. Wood, commonly known as "Willie," whom one would recognize by the "eah mahks" as the "vice-boss." He will long be remembered for his timely remarks to the classes in education.

It is nerve-racking even to call to mind those days of enrollment at the beginning of each term—the confusion, the hubbub, n'everything; but there is one personage at Old Northwestern whose calm, amiable disposition remains unchanged even at this crucial moment—our Registrar, Professor G. C. Jackson.

Then there is the good-natured Sabin C. Perceful who is—well, is there anything that Percy isn't? And Mrs. Sabin C. to whom Percy tenderly refers as "my wife!" We would proclaim her the sweetest member of the entire faculty, did we not fear the jealousy of the others.

Everyone likes to be in Miss Morris' classes because she has been to France, and some students are so fond of her that they spend as much as three or four hours a day with her.

Mr. Jenner, who coaches the construction of library tables and cedar chests, has only one fault, his adoration of the fair sex and we can't blame him for that.

Speaking of Mr. Jenner, we are prone to think of Miss Crumley who gives advice and training along the lines of biscuit-making and housekeeping which usually follows pretty closely the cedar chest anyway.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

If Mr. Battenberg is our all-guiding father, Miss Shockley must be our ever-present mother; and you know that "eagle-eye" and way of finding out things that mother has—nuf sed.

When all others fail, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Threadgill can always be depended upon to uphold the dignity of our institution.

Our sweet songbird is Miss Anne L. Ford and—well, everyone loves Miss Ford, you know.

Miss Stegall, the artist, is very fond of colors when they are properly combined. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

"Wyatt" and "Championship" go hand in hand.

Professor U. J. Griffith, head of the English department, is the best known authority on mixed metaphors and *temper—*ance.

It won't be Mr. Vinson's fault if we don't raise enough "raw material" for Miss Crumley's girls to experiment on.

Professor Guy M. Lisk, we are told, can tell you all you want to know about cutting up cats or dogs or making good moonshine.

Judging from Professor M. E. Wood's remarks at various times, in class and otherwise, we conclude that he must at some time in his life have been a "report"—er.

We have now reached the climax who is Professor E. A. Herod. To know him, you must come and find out for yourselves.

Senior College

W

E HAVE followed the long trail, in and around Northwestern, for many years and now at the end of that trail there are some words in final that we feel we must impart to those who'll take our place when we go through the door of the "old castle on the hill," for the last time.

To the Freshmen who enter the college we hope you'll study hard the first year and make good grades, it will be smoother sailing after having once made a reputation.

We hereby leave to the present Junior Class, the right to assume all the dignity necessary to step into our shoes, and rule over the lower classes.

And to the Sophomore Class we wish to say that it's up to you to teach the Freshmen the ropes, paying attention that they know, just what classes are "pipes," that the Dean of Women's "rules" are harmless, that Ontogany recapitulates Philogany according to U. J. Griffith.

To President Battenberg we go, in the hope that you will continue to run the College in the future as you have done, in your same successful manner, which, by the way, is nearly like we would have run it. And, too, we hope, that you will be able to afford for some of the faculty the following:

Mr. Lisk—a new "still."

Mr. W. H. Wood—an alarm for waking his classes.

Miss Shockley, Mrs. Brown and Mr. Herod—a pension.

Mr. Griffith—a new heating system.

Mr. Jenner—a speedometer.

Mr. M. E. Wood—a talking machine.

Mrs. Threadgill—a shotgun.

Junior College Humor Sketch

HE Junior class claims the distinction of being the smallest class in the school in regard to numbers. They consider this quite a distinction since only one class at a time can enjoy it. They speak of other things to be proud of, such as their former association with the Seniors, but they seem to consider this of only small importance.

Speaking of things of importance, there are just seven such things about the Junior class. These are as follows: Becker, Davis, Frawley, Chew, Hardy, Smith and Albright. By way of explanation, Becker is that handsome fellow who presides at meetings of the Choral Club. Both he and Hardy have a long time been struggling upward in the music realm and have now reached that point where they are eligible to give Chautauqua concerts on the back fence at any hours of the night. "Chewie" is undoubtedly one of the speediest of the late models, and at present holds the Northwestern record for miles per hour on any kind of track. Neta may not be a great force in the world at large and when considered alone, but with Don she can do anything—that she pleases. Corabelle is eccentric in some things. We do not know why, but writing a thesis is her delight. Margaret is somewhat the same. Her joy in taking a Spanish quiz is quickly caught up by all onlookers. Ethel's peculiarity is being studious.

Senior High School

THE Senior Normal Class, now known as the Sophomore College Class, is not looked upon with as much respect as it commonly was in past years. This difference is ascribed to the fact that since the Normal Schools were put on a college basis, the Junior and Senior departments of the college fell heir to the prestige formerly held by the Normal graduate.

However this does not lessen the reality that the Normal Senior in becoming a Sophomore in college has added tasks to perform. He or she in graduating from high school has accomplished a real task. Then those that complete the Normal course, two years above the high school, have accomplished a greater task.

One does not help the world merely by being here but by doing things to benefit his fellow-man. If one were to inspect the elementary and secondary schools of the state, the teachers found at the head of these institutions in nearly all cases would be Normal graduates. Likewise those found at the head of the rural district schools will be high school students or high school graduates.

The economic and industrial condition of life would not be benefitted or improved merely by Normal graduates teaching in the city schools but by the application of their knowledge in rural districts as well. Then the city schools would not be contented with the Normal graduate but would require that those teaching be graduates of colleges or universities.

So it stands to reason that if all schools, including the rural schools, required at least Normal graduates, city schools and high schools should have college graduates. Either of these may be obtained at Northwestern.

It is the Normal graduate on whom the responsibility of educating the children of northwest Oklahoma is devolved, because three-fourths of the students quit school after completing high school.

So the honor of transplanting a practical education to the greatest number of people falls upon the College Sophomore.

Northwestern High School

I

T was Julius Caesar who said in that famous connection of writings known as the "Commentaries," that frequent contact of men in commercial pursuits tended to produce higher civilization. Still more true is it that frequent and intimate academic contact presents favorable conditions for intellectual advancement.

Probably no better environment could be found for an ideal setting for a high school than the atmosphere of an inspiring mother-college. Let us note a few of the many advantages of a Normal High School. In the first place the very atmosphere provides an inspiration for high school students. With a background of full college activities to inspire, there is no reason why any high school student should for one moment be contented with a high school diploma. Even from the grades each ambitious boy or girl looks toward a degree as his or her ideal. Remember all ideals come during adolescence and the pupil is at that time in the high school. This is the strategic moment for the college to inspire and it can probably do that best when the high school is on the college campus.

In the second place library and laboratory facilities are usually good on the college campus. Should the college possess a museum or natural history collection this will prove very helpful in motivating subjects just as juvenile books from the college library prove inspiring in both grades and high school.

Furthermore whatsoever other equipment whether normal training, domestic science and art or automobile shops this usually proves even more beneficial to students of high school than of college. Then again whatever advantage there is that comes to the college student by actual contact with the heads of the departments and the more mature teachers either in experience or scholarship or both that same advantage comes to the high school student, especially in the case of the small college where the labors of teachers are shared equally with college and high school students alike.

Often the exurbant dynamic emotional nature of the high school gets not only an inspiration but heartfelt guidance and sympathy from the experienced college teacher.

Then again the example of hard-working, ambitious, loyal, patriotic manly and womanly college men and women can not fail to create images on the minds of high school youth. In close contact the stronger always dominates and so high school boys and girls take on for the most part unconsciously the very attitude and address as well as the inspiring ideals of the college, and high school discipline is reduced to zero.

Senior High School

THESE are the simple facts about the case and I guess we ought to know. It includes all of our Senior Class and we'll may you believe it so. Our noble President's name is Gladys McGill,—no matter what the occasion she smiles, and always will. We now introduce to you our Vice-President, Mary C. Bicknell—Mary believes in raising old "ned" but after all 'tis over—"Nuff said." Cecile McMurtrey, our Secretary and Treasurer—Does a bird eat, no she's Chew-s—, although Galli Curci has a career she has nothing on "Cece" and "Cece" doesn't fear. Bill Julian, our "big boy,"—rather bashful, but girls, beware!—every dog has its day—big enough to hold down any man's job—weight 220. Next we introduce to you Marie Applebaugh, one for whom we have great hopes, and believe that she will overcome her timidity. Paul Garrison: "Gov."—ladies, let us present to you our "Beau Brummel"; here's hoping that Paul will be back with us next year and bring her too. Vera Jones—"Joachim Specialist"—she's good in Physics and also in the moonlight. Anson "Buddy" Ingles—typical American—a small boy with a big mouth, but girls, he's there! Myrtle Glynn—"Cutie"—rather quiet but one who knows astronomy from practical experience. Delmar DeVelbiss—"Dodo"—first aid man, one who escorts a party of two to see Parsons; ask Schaefer and Pugh for full particulars. Alice Hyde—we'll eventually reach the stars. Gilbert Cox—P. D. C.'s champion debater; takes frequent trips to Kansas City—reasons unknown. Florence Brown—our future Alma Gluck; prefers a blonde. Hon. Elwood Pugh, Esq., known to Mrs. Threadgill as Vernon Parsons, Esq.; village cut-up and midnight serenader. Ethyl Dunning—"Bobby", who would make a star in "All of a Sudden Peggy!" Aspirations, "All of the Boys." Hugh Mitchell—"Tennis Shark"; we don't know her name. Ruth Bagenstos—prefers the "little boy" with the big mouth—quite a vamp. Albert Becker—without a doubt the braman of our class; does not fear a "Fehrer". Just as foolish as he sounds. Lillie Fisher—quiet? Yes! Angling season is not here yet. Dan Eickman "Rev.", expects to enter into the service of the Lord in China. Frank Stickler—our most studious student; gets his dad's Ford occasionally—some stepper. Sherman Enterline—fugitive from the "pest house." John Julian—a boy who has many good thoughts and ideas, but lacks ambition to express them. Carrie Arganbright, our honored and elderly senior, one who is rather finicky about banks so uses the "First National for Ladies Only." Perle Ent: Perle comes to us from Jerusalem in behalf of our people in the Near East.

O

N a hot windy summer day the Junior class started out with the musical Ford, Veley's sedan, and Jones' light six. Taking with them for protection a Goreringer Cannon.

After crossing the Hime river, we Land(er)ed in the little town of Livingston, which was surrounded by a forest of Ash. A short distance from the Winifred Har-wells was Parson's Wheat-ley farm, where Vermillion and his crew were demonstrating the Mote, Maddox and Hunt combine.

After watching the demonstration our attention was attracted by a little incident which took place at the home of Mr. Wenger. It reads as follows: Benson, who was Dunning Faudree, gave a Rapp at the door with a Hammer(in)stead of the Surface of her Mit(ts). Brunner, the servant of the house of high Rank, Shutt the door in her face. This made her angry so we sent Gilbert, the Duke of Alva, to Holder.

Our journey home was lightened by our music instructor, Mr. Lisk, and our old sextette, Foster, Cox, Sutton, Collins, Goucher and Hobbs, leading us in some of old N. S. N. songs.

EPTEMBER arrived, the imps of heat contending with the demons of dust for supremacy, and with its coming the "Softmore" Class in its good (Clif) Ford Car (berry) spun into High School Highway, bound for the Temple of Knowledge.

The journey is a long one. The way leads through many a Dale and Mounts to sublime heights. On one side is a pasture which had since Benefiel(d); on the other, a Mad(d)ox grazes viciously in the Wheat.

We stopped in Charles Park for a while. Here we found Florence George, sitting on a pile of corn Cobb (s), Beasley Wright (ing) an essay on "Why Is This Thus?"

From Charles Park we rode to an ancient castle known as Edward Hall. On the way we suffered what was, perhaps, the most serious accident of our trip. A Chick ran across the road in front of the car. Ollie McDowell caught the wheel to Turner. Catharine Matthews called to Ollie to Park'er, but it was too lote. The car was already in the ditch. The Hubbar(re)d further progress by sticking fast in a bank at the side of the road. Earl Gourley assisted the girls out of the car. Although we had Al(l)den what we could, we had accomplished very little. We refused to Grieve about it however, and decided to send some one for help. While we were deciding who should go, Maudie Bruner discovered Ansel Conder Hyde(ing) behind Lucille Vickers and Wilfreda Eickman, so we appointed him a committee unto himself to find assistance.

While he was gone, Anna Wenger found she had lost her Mitts, and raised a row (Rauch) about it; but the class all joined in the search and they were soon found.

By this time Ansel had reached a house a short distance from the Highway. Who should live there but Mr. Vinson. He gladly gave us his assistance, and after putting a couple of Gallon(s) of water in the radiator, we were soon on our way again.

The second milestone on the High School Highway is passed. We draw near to the Temple of Knowledge.

Wyatts' Story of How We Did it

MANY have asked how the Rangers managed to win the State Championship. And after the game with Edmond, Central Normal, I received many congratulating letters always ending with, "How did you do it?" One could answer by saying it was a greater determination, more skill and higher patriotism or loyalty. But platitudes are never satisfactory or convincing. The big problem of a school like Northwestern is material. The task that follows is to weld this raw material into a determined, skillful machine that has a soul that is willing to die for something, namely, the school, the team, or the coach.

Northwestern 1920 football prospects were not bright. Many of the larger schools were able to offer certain inducements. Players that naturally belonged to Northwestern passed by to the school that they thought had the chance to win.

The return of part of last year's team with the entrance of some new material began to give hope for a real team. The preliminary games against several of the high schools were not very encouraging but these with the hard gruelling practice, followed by a six miles cross country began to put the team in shape.

The first real surprise came when the Rangers early in the season outplayed Phillips University throughout the first half of the game. The smothering defeat of Chilocco and A. & M. a few weeks later began to turn the eyes of state teams toward Northwestern. A real scare was thrown into the rest of our opponents when the Rangers battled Kendall University to virtually a tie at Tulsa. Hopes ran high and even some of our critics and delinquent state papers began to say we had a chance to defeat our strongest rival, Edmond.

Since this was our most important game something of the details of it might not be out of place.

Central (Edmond) was confident Northwestern was working and praying. Capt. Garrison at center was passing the ball unequalled by any center in the state. To his right stood all-state guard and tackle, Woodson and Ranck, long, lean, wire drawn, each carrying one hundred and eighty pounds of bone and muscle into every charge.

It was around these giants that most of the plays were built. Circle completed the line on that side, an aggressive powerful youngster that was quick to see an opening or go under any kind of a play.

On the left was Cal Stewart and Sprague who alternated at guard and Tex Edgar at tackle. Out on the end was Brown of Cherokee High, and Bennett, both heady fast players, never allowing themselves to be out-guessed. This side of the line was a stone wall over which the enemy could not pass.

Becker, a big fellow with a lot of fight, could play any place on the line and make good. Paul Garrison could play at either guard and substituted in several games at center.

It was a good line that learned to believe in itself. The backfield was composed of Stewart, McCormack, Skillern and Surface, who were the fastest in the state, standing nearly six feet and averaging 175 pounds. This team as it filed out of the dressing room on the day of the Edmond game were fit for any kind of a battle, keen eyed, muscles taunted, lips drawn, frozen to every sound but the bark of the quarter-back. Central at times carried the war into the Rangers' territory but could never pass. You can't beat a team that won't be beaten.

The two games that followed with Ada and Southwestern were easily taken. The Rangers of 1920 had everything that goes to make a winning team. Speed, skill, endurance and loyalty backed up by the Northwestern part of the State. How could they help but win?

Captain
Don .
Garrison

||||||| 1921 |||||||

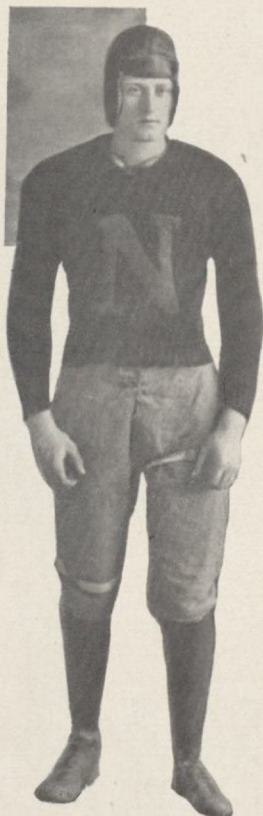

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

DON GARRISON. Our captain played his second year with N. S. N. at the position n pass the ball with as much accuracy as "Cur-tarted in the games against Kendall and Ed-ley" and he was good on the defense. Don started in the games against Kendall and Edmond. The men all liked him and he was a good leader. He has two more years in which to help make N. S. N. famous for her football teams. Don is 22, weighs 170 pounds and claims Cherokee as his home.

WILLIAM RANCK. "Bill" was chosen as All-State tackle and this title he justly deserved, for on no team will you find a better man than he. Bill, though somewhat handicapped with a fractured knee, made football a business and put all his pep and vim in the game, even in practice. He will be with us next year and if all the men fight like Bill does there will be no question but what we will have another championship team. Bill is 23, weighs 175 pounds and claims Gage as his home.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

RALPH SURFACE. Known by all his team mates as "Swede" played his first year at N. S. N. as half back. He was the man that carried the ball over the line for all three touchdowns in the game against Edmond. Surf was exceptionally good at handling the forward pass. The Tulsa World places Ralph on the All-State team. He is 19, and weighs 178 pounds. Alva claims him.

BONNIE STEWART. Time and space will not allow us to do justice to the All-State half-back. He was a star in all the games and surpassed all his opponents in punting. He was given a position on the All-State team by all the leading papers. "Bish" could handle the forward pass with more ease than the ordinary fellow can his food. He is 22, weighs 175 pounds, and lives in Alva.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

JOHN McCORMICK. Known the State over as "Mc" was the man chosen to fill the position of full back and he filled it well. John gained from one to ten yards every time he carried the ball in Kendall game. This was "Mc's" third year with Northwestern and he gets better each year, therefore, we expect great things from him next year. He was chosen on the All-State team by the Tulsa World and the Oklahoman. John is 20 and weighs 185 pounds.

JOSEPH BECKER. A new man on the squad but showed that he had some knowledge of football when he got in the game at the last against Edmond, and showed his ability as a line man. Joe has one more year at N. S. N. and will be a very valuable man for next season. His home is Meno and he is 23, weighing 180 pounds.

||||||| The Ranger |||||||

GAYLORD BENNETT. Better known as "Butch" was the one man that could play in any position and deliver the goods. Though "Butch" did not have the opportunity of playing in all the games he was very valuable in a pinch. He was the little man of the team, weighing 135 pounds. He is 21 years of age and calls Alva his home. Gaylord has another year in which to distinguish himself at Northwestern.

PAUL GARRISON. "Governor" substituted at guard and played in enough games to win his letter. This was his second year at N. S. N. and he was a good fighter. We predict that he will be one of Wyatt's valuable men by next year as he will become older than 18 and will in all probabilities weigh more than 160 pounds. His home is Cherokee.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

HENRY EDGAR. Known by all as "Tex" came to us like a thief in the night. He happened along at the first of the season and asked for a suit, no one knew him or where he hailed from, but after he explained that he was from Texas and had played football we asked him to show us. This he did in the game against Edmond. He opened a hole for our backs every time he was called on and stopped everything that came his way. He is a tackle N. S. N. should be proud of. He is 24 and weighs 195 pounds.

ROBERT T. ARMOUR. "Bob" although a sub was a man that Coach Wyatt was not afraid to put in when the time came necessary. Bob substituted at end and was a good hard tackler and could pull the forward pass from the air with perfect ease. He has several years yet to serve N. S. N. He is 19 and weighs 165 pounds.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

CLAIR SPRAGUE. A man that had never played football, but showed so much fight that he won a place as guard and made a letter. With this year of experience and another year of age and weight, he will be a very valuable man for N. S. N. Sprague was one of the men that was always ready for practice and one that put all he had into practice. He is 19 and weighs 170 pounds. His home is at Aline.

ALBERT BROWN. "Dutch" held the other wing position. He stopped the Edmond backs in their attempts to make end runs and at no time did he allow them to gain around his position. "Dutch" could get down under our punts better than any man on the team. This was his first year with N. S. N. and next year will find him one of Wyatt's best men. He is 20, weighs 168 pounds and lives at Cherokee.

||||||| The Ranger |||||||||

GRADY SKILLERN. This was Grady's second year. Last year being Captain and playing half-back and this year he assumed the responsibility of quarter-back. He received honorable mention by the Tulsa World. His ability to call the right play was dominant and he made but very few mistakes. He won fame in the hearts of all football fans in the games against Kendall and Edmond. He has another year in which to help Northwestern win another championship. Grady hails from Atoka, is 22 and weighs 175 pounds.

CAL STEWART. The heaviest man on the team and the one man that has exceptional ability when it comes to getting the man out of the way. Cal played guard and was called back in the back field at times to carry the ball when we needed a few yards, and we might say that he never failed to gain when given the opportunity. He lives in Alva, weighs 216 pounds and is 26 years of age.

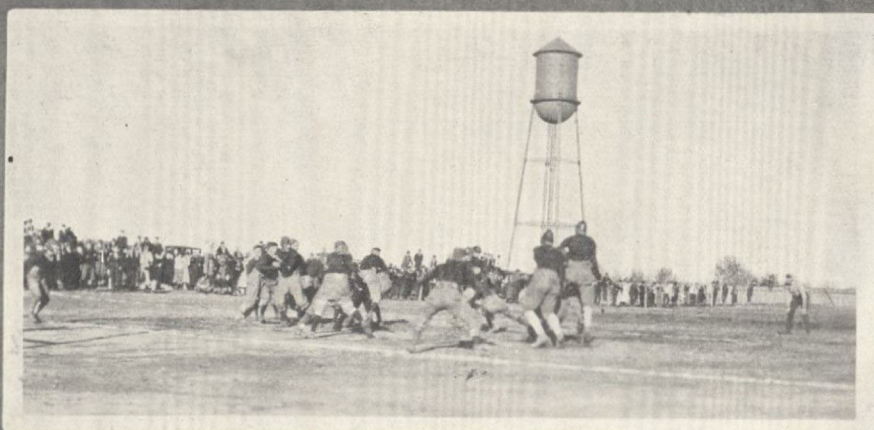

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

HAROLD CIRCLE. "Bud" was one of the best ends that N. S. N. has had for many years. In the game with Phillips he did not let a man pass his way, when they attempted to skirt the end that Bud was playing they were tackled so hard that they had to be carried from the field of battle. He is another 19-year-old boy weighing 165 pounds and makes his home in Alva. He has two more years in which to serve Old Northwestern.

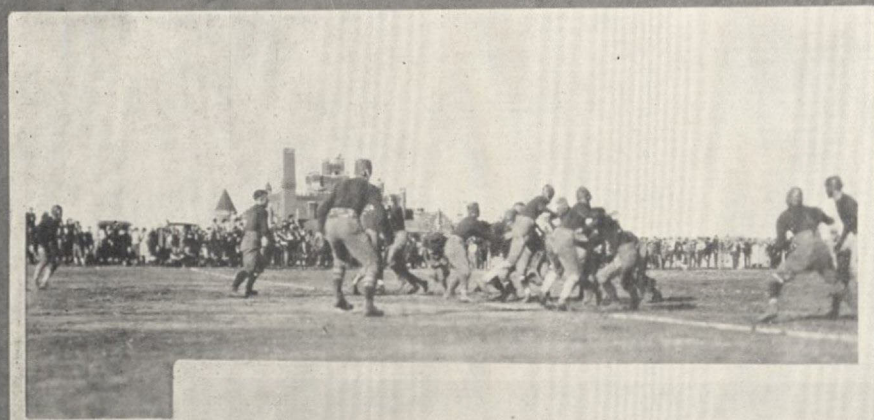

BURRELL WOODSON is another one of our All-State men that we have a just right to be proud of. You will not find a better guard anywhere than "Woodie." After the first two or three downs of a game you could see "Burly" telling the quarter-back to send a play over his side of the line, and he would have a hole opened for the man carrying the ball. Also I might say that he has two more years to play with N. S. N. Alva claims him, he is 21 and weighs 170 pounds.

HOME COMING

YE! there it stands! For years now it has weathered the storms that have raged about it. Still it proudly holds up its head. All the forces that have been hurled against it have availed nothing. It is in itself the very embodiment of strength and firmness and constancy. But great are the powers that have opposed it. And perhaps it is not of its own strength alone that it has triumphed. Each time that a great crisis has come there has arisen from out the shadow of the Old Castle a protecting power so potent and so timely as to be well-nigh miraculous. Only once in a season has it come, but that once has each time been the supreme moment, when it has sufficed to turn the tide of struggle into glorious victory. Then it retires as silently as it comes. It is of this miracle of power that I would speak.

It has been now only a matter of months since the last appearance of this marvel. You will remember the time when mighty foes came up from the south with dire purposes and overbearing confidence thinking to humble the name of the Old Castle and compel her to bow down in ungracious defeat. Long will the memory of that day last. For weeks in advance things were being made ready for that day. And when it came what fear was there in the hearts of those who were unacquainted with the past. Formidable were the foes, and worthy to cope with Titans. Would the fame of the Old Castle stand or fall?

At the first signs of the approaching struggle there could be felt on all sides a great stir, a broad extensive movement, near and far, here, there and yonder, assuming greater and still greater proportions. Out of this there arose a multitude that, seeming to have in view a common end, turned as one toward the common center, and collecting at the feet of the Old Castle, prepared to play a part. By the hundreds they came, and uniting, each adding to the power of the other, appeared in fullest strength on the field of battle. Now came the critical moment. Now, if ever, the victory would be turned. The enemy, seeing and understanding, and apparently impelled by some great fear, wavered, turned, and routed and broken in spirit, ungraciously fled.

But what was this miraculous power? It was verily the spirit of the Old Castle itself that, embodied in those who have lived in its richness and fullness, is able to move mountains or to separate the waters of the sea.

BASKETBALL

EFORE the football season had closed, a number of ex-high school stars and last year letter men were practicing basket ball. Those men on the foot ball team that played basket ball were soon in the scene of battle and every man was aware of the fact that if he won a place on the Ranger quintette he would have to show some real ability for playing the game.

There was no attempt to select a team until every man had a fair chance to try out. There were five teams on the court every evening for practice. Coach Wyatt tried several combinations before he found the one he felt he could develop into a team that would be worthy of representing Northwestern. Whether his selection was good or not, we will leave you to judge for yourself. In making this judgment you may consult the record of the Rangers for the past season.

The Rangers journeyed to Weatherford to play their first conference game. Southwestern had held the championship for two consecutive years. The team that they sent against the Rangers was the same team that had won the championship.

After the Rangers spent two nights in Weatherford taking a game from them each night by a large score, they came back to Alva feeling that they were ready to play any team in the state.

After the Rangers won from all the leading teams in Oklahoma they made a trip into Kansas and ended the season at Kansas City, playing in the tournament.

BONNIE STEWART, Captain is one of the Old Rangers that made the trip to the coast. He is exceptionally speedy and heady. You could always count on Bonnie making his portion of the baskets in any game. Owing to the five-man defense that all the teams play now it is necessary to have a man that can fool the opposing team on the pass. This Bonnie could do better than any other man on the team. He has a way of looking one way and passing the ball in an opposite, that is very deceptive. This is probably Bonnie's last year as he plays baseball and the new ruling will not permit a professional ball player to play in College.

GRADY SKILLERN. Grady is a guard that seldom ever takes a shot in a game, but he can always keep the other fellow from getting a shot. He worked with Stewart in passing the ball through the five-man defense. Grady is exceptionally heady and can cover the floor quick. He has one more year to be with the Rangers.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

ROSS FAUDREE. He is very small in stature but very large in playing basket ball. He was Stewart's running mate at forward position. Ross is very fast and a good dribbler. This was his first year to play college basket ball but you would think from the way that he plays the game that he was a fellow with a world of experience. He assumed the responsibility of throwing free goals and he could always be depended on to make them. Ross has several years to play with the Rangers.

JONES GRAVES. Jones played the game at center. His ability to outjump his opponent was never questioned. It took real brains to outwit the visiting quintet when they played the five man defense, and this was what Jones had. His ease in shooting goals was at par with Stewart, as well as the points made. Jones always put up a hard fight, and never lost his head in a game. He was on the Ranger quintet last year, this year, and will be for the next three years.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

ARTHUR CRISWELL. "Cris" played the season at guard. He is one of those guards that can make a basket when his team needs a few points to win. Cris guards as good as the best and can pass the ball equally as well. In the game against Southwestern he went mad and made as many goals as the forwards. He has two more years to play with Northwestern.

TED TENNY. Ted, the tall one of the squad played his last games this year under the flag of the Rangers. He left school in the middle of the season and consequently did not make the Kansas City trip. His coolness and steady playing was at all times an aid in winning the games.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

JOE BECKER. This was Joe's first year at N. S. N. The record he made though was such that we wish he will never leave the banner of the Rangers. He is fast and can hit the basket which are qualities that made him one of the best running guards in the state.

HOMER ANDERSON. Preach, was a star on the Alva High basketball team last year and played the same kind of a game for Northwestern this year. He always finds the basket and has lots of fight. With this year's experience Preach will be an all-state man on Wyatt's team next year. He has several years to help Northwestern hold the state championship.

Before the first basketball whistle had been blown, the Freshmen had already made plans for the organization of a Freshmen basketball team. There were seven men from the Freshmen Class who had played on high school teams in previous years and who had all made good records while in high school. These men were Anderson and Heaton from Alva, Lawson from Gage, Sprague of Aline, Oxley from Cleo Springs, Armour from Canton, and Wren from Sharon. Lawson was elected captain and Earl Heaton, business manager.

This is the first year that the Normal has had a team representing the Freshmen Class and it has proved to be a great success, and has advertised the Normal wherever it has gone. The season was very favorable, having only one defeat.

Summing up the season's games:

BASEBALL

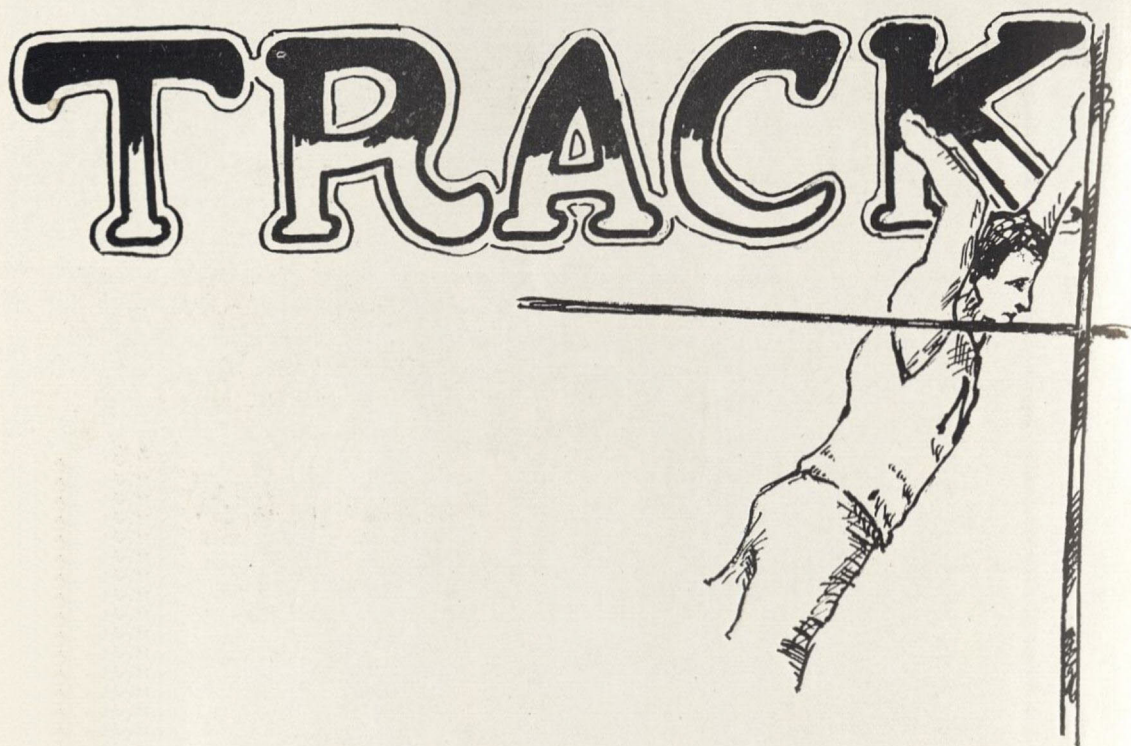

Shakespeare might have been right, but up around Northwestern "in the spring a young man's fancy" and baseball are very harmonious.

The Ranger being on the press during the baseball season, a detailed account of the great American game cannot be given. But this year the prospects are better than they have been since Wyatt and his proteges copped the state pennant in 1914 and 1915. Capt. Wyatt has always had a good baseball aggregation, every year he has been at Northwestern, and it looks like a championship in baseball is all that is necessary to have a well balanced year of championships.

This spring the prospective team will include Becker and Criswell, pitchers, Wiebner and Ranck, catchers, Skillern, Rapp, Shutt, Faudree, Thomas, infielders, Bennett, Surface, Sprague, and others in the outfield. Others will be out for the nine but so far, the above have signified their intentions.

We hope that the 1922 Ranger will be able to publish a detailed account with pictures of how Northwestern won the baseball championship.

HE spring of 1921 holds many good things in store for Ranger track men, for this year Northwestern has more material than it did back in those days when Sandefur and Griffith were stars.

Northwestern will enter the Normal College invitation meet and also the State Intercollegiate. The Ranger's best bet this year is Ralph Surface, all-around man in field and track. His best performances will be in the 100 and 220 dashes, javelin, weights, and the star man of the relay team. Other men that will be out for an "N" in track are Hardy, Faudree, Stewart, Sprague, Thomas and Young. There are many men here for their first year that the Ranger hasn't a line on as it goes to press.

TENNIS

HIS out-door court game received a hard blow when Ted Tenney withdrew from the College, because it will be remembered that he, back in 1916 in connection with his partner, Lane, gave the schools of the state a hard run for the title. Frank Hess, Bob Lasley, P. Faulkner, Wm. Stites and A. Thomas are a few that helped put tennis on the map at Northwestern.

This year plans are being made for matches with some of the closer schools, and Wm. Stites, Thomas, Stewart, Hardy, Gildemeister, Sprague and others will be out for the team.

The co-eds go in for tennis strong in the spring and summer, and the Physical Education classes devote most of their time to it.

Discoveries of an Inquisitive Person

W

HAT do you suppose I found the Saturday Nites doing? Just what all the ancients have done before them. They donned freakish garbings, forcing Father Time backward and played at being "kids" again.

In the Philomathean Club there has been a serious division. Several belong to an organization known as the "Gee-Whiz" Club while a few have the distinction of having "Aviators." I also saw their Ford—talk about spud, their runabout is absolutely unsurpassed in any respect.

In speaking of the P. D. C.'s the only information I could secure was that they, as individuals, and collectively were all jokes.

At the last hearing the N. S. N.'s were all found to be deeply interested in the antics of Mutt and Jeff. They were debating the question as to whether or not these dear old friends merited a place in the school libraries.

The Saturday Nite Club was organized in 1906 for the purpose of improving literary and social life at N. S. N. This year the club has taken on in addition, activities in a much broader field—the betterment of Alva. Under the leadership of Miss Stegall it has faithfully carried out the Community Story-telling project together with other work in the homes of the needy in connection with the local Red Cross until now it is noted for the efficiency of the girls and their untiring efforts to boost Northwestern.

N. S. N. Debating Club

IN the year 1907 a group of energetic young men of Northwestern banded themselves together and organized a society for the purpose of training themselves to better perform the public duties of citizenship. During the intervening years that organization has flourished and is now one of the foremost in Northwestern. In these years the training that it has afforded in parliamentary law and practice, debating, oratory and public speaking has been of the best. The efficiency of N. S. N. Debating Club has told in the number of its successes in debate, and also in the number of successful professional men that have received their training within the club.

At the beginning of the current year there were twelve members in school. Soon after reorganization the membership was increased almost to the limit, and N. S. N. Club began a year of intensive and extensive activity. Besides working diligently to raise higher the efficiency in Club work it has at all times stood squarely behind Northwestern and all the activities and interests of Northwestern. It has loyally supported the student publications and has offered active assistance in the movements to better Alva and the College. Finally, it has placed two men on the Triangular Debate teams, and all the members look forward to another victory and more honors for the club and for Northwestern.

P. D. C. Club

W

E GOT a slow start this year as only nine old members came back. But in a little while we got to running nicely with a small membership of about fourteen.

At the beginning of the second semester we got a new start. Bill Ranck as president made us snap into it. We got to work on debating and landed four men on the debating team, three regulars and one alternate. Ranck, Pugh and Schaefer as regulars and Julian as an alternate. We do not feel that we made such a failure of the year after all.

P. D. C. has good athletes, too. Bill Ranck was selected for all-state, Grady Skillern received honorable mention and Do Garrison was captain of the year that led the Varsity eleven to a state championship season.

We are sorry to say, four of our members were unable to get their pictures in. Bill Coopridge, Vernon Parsons, (Vice-President), Robert Hadwiger and our new member, Guilford Louthan, and Delmar Del-Velbiss were the men whose pictures are not in.

Three of the P. D. C. men who made the debating team this year will be back next year. We say again the P. D. C. are to be congratulated on their work this year considering the many hindrances. If we make as good a showing next year as we did this, everyone will sit up and take notice at the P. D. C. as they have done in the past years.

The P. D. C. are known as one of the strongest debating clubs in the state. Of our eighteen members fourteen will be back the coming year which promises a greater success for Northwesterns, and the P. D. C. as in years past, will give its hearty support to achieve that end.

That Rooters Club

W

HEN the team momentarily weakened, who was it that struck up that song of songs, "OLD NORTHWESTERN," that somehow caught hold of the men and made them hold?—that Rooters Club! What gang was it that yelled till the whistle blew---that Rooters Club! What bunch is it that announces to the natives that there'll be a game at a certain time?—that Rooters Club!

When a student enrolls at Northwestern College he automatically becomes a member of that Rooters Club. And a fellow who can't cut loose with his vocal organs just naturally don't fit into the scheme of things at the Ranger Ranch. Because in and around the "Old Castle on the Hill" the tradition of fighting to the end has been handed down for years. It's that spirit of doing things with lots of pep which gained for us the term "Ranger."

So, gentle reader, if you're a member of the Rooters Club, you're a Ranger. And once a Ranger, always a Ranger. When you go out to the four corners, carry with you the lessons of clean sport you've learned under the banners of Northwestern.

And in the battles that are fought over office desk on city streets and on country hills, stand an' smile an' fight, long after the goal line of your first defense has been crossed.

DRAMATICS

||||||| 1921 |||||||

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

D

RAMATICS at Old Northwestern has never been so high in the estimation of the student body as during the past year under the personal supervision of Mrs. Sabin C. Perceful.

Considering the large attendance and liberal patronage of the citizens of Alva, the plays have been more than successful. Owing to the poor arrangement of the Normal stage many of the entertainments were held in the Liberty theatre and High School building. One of the most successful numbers was:

"THE MAKER OF DREAMS."

By Oliphant Down.

A fantasy in one act.

Pierrot ----- Gladys McGill.

Pierrette ----- Lucille Chew

The Manufacturer ----- Helen Graham.

||||||| The Ranger ||||||||||||||||||

One of the big hits of the season was a three act comedy presented by the Senior High School Class, entitled "Sick-Abed."

Another play over which Alva and Northwestern went wild was:

THE REJUVENATION OF AUNT MARY.

Presented by the Senior Normal Class.

EBATING is one of the important student activities at N. S. N. The debating clubs—P. D. C. and N. S. N. are among the oldest student organizations in the institution, the P. D. C. having been organized in 1900 and N. S. N. somewhat later. The inter-collegiate debates have been an important feature of the work of these clubs. In one year they won five out of six such inter-collegiate contests and brought to Northwestern State Normal the championship of Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri.

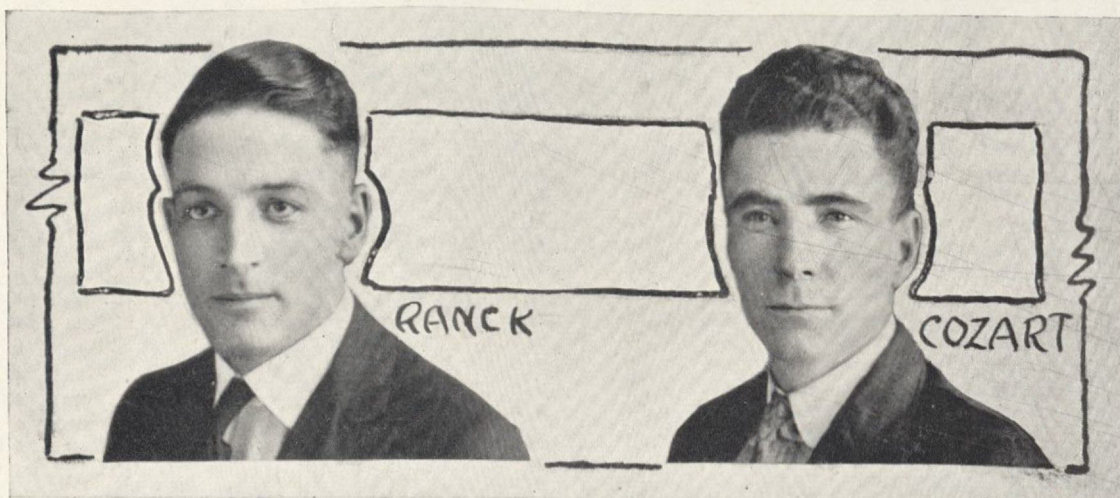

The six state teachers' colleges constitute a debating association composed of two triangles. Each college is represented by two teams of two members each. In the annual debate one of these teams visits one of the other colleges, while the other meets a visiting team at home. The members are chosen by a general try-out open to all students.

Last year our visiting team won from Ada, while the home team lost to Weatherford. Although none of the members of last year's teams are attending Northwestern this year, we have some championship material in each club and expect to make a strong bid for the championship of Oklahoma. Prof. Lisk as instructor of the N. S. N. club and Prof. M. E. Wood, of the P. D. C. are certainly to be complimented on the enthusiasm of the membership of the clubs, a good deal of which is due to their ability in conducting this kind of work.

The members of these clubs have shown during the year that their abilities are not confined to parliamentary and debating work alone. Social affairs and all entertainments receive the hearty co-operation and support of the clubs.

The following men will represent Northwestern in the annual debate: William Ranck, Elwood Pugh, Stanley Belden and Everett Cozart.

"Theres music in the air" at Northwestern. From the President's high tenor to the metrical rhyme of the kindergartners, everyone is a part of a large symphony chorus. Countless, almost are the musicians that have graduated from Northwestern, and many more are coming up. This year under the cooperation of Mrs. Bogue and Miss Ford music has prospered.

From Mrs. Bogue's department nine students of the piano are graduated this year. Lois Skelton, Mrs. Fred Fash, Vera Jones, Carrie Maxwell, Mary Collins, Winnifred Lee, Mrs. Clara Oshel, Alma Oringdorff and Helen Francis receive certificates.

Miss Ford has put into operation four organizations, a mixed quartette, a ladies trio, a choral club, and a male quartette. All these groups make trips to neighboring towns in connection with the readers, and are a great asset to the "Old Castle on the Hill."

KODAK AND HUMOR

IN THIS BOOK, we have endeavored to offer for your approval snapshots, jokes and humorous selections which make up the every-day life of the students attending, "The Old Castle on the Hill."

Without humor and laughable sights, life would be dreary and monotonous indeed, so we ask you gentle reader to realize this and consider a joke merely a joke; if some one's feelings are touched, see Miss Shockley.

A Stegall Special

THE TEXT, or rather pretext, of this brief resume is the life history of the painter, sculptor and he-vamp of renaissance, Michael Angelo.

Michael Angelo was the greatest of all painters—prior to introduction of modern cosmetics.

Michael was born at a very early age in Rome. It is argued that he was born in the Appian Way but it has since been proven that it was in the Customary Way.

Mike was a very precocious youngster and at the unsophisticated age of four, while he still played with imitation marbles, he bested his father in an argument over the catydids on the front porch of the Erectheum. His father was deaf and dumfounded.

After Mike had obtained his majority and had cast his first vote with the same artistic acumen as he cast his shadows, his fame as an artist was assured. In fact, he drew up Rome's constitution which was noted for it's billiousness.

Mike was a very eccentric personage and everything he did was for the love of Mike.

His greatest work was done in ceiling-wax when he was commissioned by Pope Piecrus III, to execute a few figures on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel.

This is said to be his highest contribution to art because it took the tallest step ladder in Rome to climb up to the figures. This highly pleased the Pope and, as a token of appreciation, he gave Mike a free ticket from purgatory. Mike, the he-vamp that he was, deserved a round-trip ticket.

Michael Angelo was thoroughly disgusted with his most appetizing work, the sequel to Andrea del Sarto's "The Return of the Swallow." When he handed this painting to its purchaser he said: "Go Hang It."

As the years passed, Michael Angelo got older and older, and finally, he naturally died—or rather, he died a natural death but his name still rings down the corridors of time.—Exchange.

"I vant some powder."

"Mennen's?"

"No, vimmens."

"Scented?"

"No, I'll take it mit me."

Elmer Hardy: "Your mother is right. After this we will meet in the middle of the block."

Miss Morris: "Say, Miss Stegall, I read in the paper yesterday where the cashier of the bank stole a lot of things and escaped."

Miss Stegall: "Certainly you don't mean to tell me you bought a paper."

Miss Morris: "Oh, no! But the man that sat next to me did."

Meade McClure: "What are you stuttering about, Amos?"

Amos Schaefer: "Oh, I just got my tongue around my eye tooth and can't see to talk."

Charles Ferguson: "Where are you going, Bonnie?"

Bonnie Stewart: "To the doctor's."

Ernest: "Chester have you a dollar to lend me?"
Chet: "Nope."
Ernest: "Why, ten minutes ago you said you had $50,000 back of you."
Chet: "I was standing against a bank then."

"You claim there are microbes in kisses?" Grace asked the young Doctor Paul.
"There are," he said.
"What diseases do they bring?" asked Grace.
"Palpitation of the heart."

Paul Albright (to pupil in training school): "Well, Johnny, so your brother has the measles. When are you going to have them?"
Johnny: "When my brother gets through with them."

"A MIX-UP."
The orchestra softly played,
"Kiss me again."
She gazed into his eyes
And breathed a sigh.
"Your dancing is like a poem."
"Yes, yes, go on," he murmured.
"An Amy Lowell poem."
The feet are all mixed up," she said.

Mr. Griffith: "Paul, can you give me a sentence using 'goodness'?"
Paul G.: "Goodness! Here comes my girl!"

Mr. Wood: "I hear your wife is sick, Ted."
Ted Tenney: "She is, Prof."
Prof. "Is she dangerous?"
Ted: "Not a bit. She's too weak to be dangerous any more."

What we want to know is—
Why Prof. Griffith don't write a history of the Spanish American war?
Why cars won't run without gas?
What kind of tobacco Prof. Jenner chews?
What the color of Miss Stegall's hair will be next year?
Why the girls run for the front seats in W. H. Wood's class?
Who told Amos Schaffer that he was a debater?
Why that Arena or the gymnasium is not named in honor of Frank Wyatt?

Mr. Griffith: "By the bumps on your head I see you have a violent temper."
Mr. Wood: "You're wrong; it's my wife's."

Sherman Enterline: "Did you ever find out how much was stolen at the depot last night?"
Gilford Louthan: "Yes, he stole $400 and a lot of bugs."
S. E.: "Who ever heard of any one stealing a lot of bugs!"
G. L.: "Why, in the paper it said 'Burglar Steals $400 and Flees.'"

He was beset with bill and dun,
And he had very little

Mon.

"This cash," said he, "won't pay my debts,
I've nothing here but one's and

Tues."

A bright thought struck him, and he said:

"The rich Miss Goldlocks I will

Wed."

But when he paid his court to her
She lisped, but firmly said, "No,

Thur."

"Alas," said he, "then I must die!

Although hereafter I may

Fri."

They found his gloves, his coat and his hat;
The Coroner upon them

Sat.

Lisk: "What is the meaning of the 4 in H_2SO_4 ."

Bicknell: "Oh, that's something in chemistry."

"21": "Why is a pancake like the sun?"

"22": "Dot's easy; it rises out of der yeast and sets behind der vest."

The world is so full of a number of men
It is only a question of which and when.
